General Description

South Berwick, a part of the original town of Berwick, is situated in the south-western part of York County, twenty miles south south-west of Alfred, on the northern division of the Boston and Maine Railroad. It is bounded on the north by Berwick and North Berwick, on the east by Wells, on the south by Eliot and York, and on the west by the Piscataqua river. The average length of the town is ten miles, and width about four and one-half miles. The 1900 census gives its population 3188, number of polls 836 and valuation of estates $1,234,342. Berwick was originally the northern part of Kittery, the first town incorporated in the State of Maine, and was called by the Indians, Newichawannock. Prior to its incorporation it was known as the parish of Unity, a name supposed to have been given, either because of the quiet and peaceful disposition of the settlers, or from their church which no doubt was Unitarian.

June 9, 1713 it was incorporated as a town under the name of Berwick, so called from one of the Berwicks of England or Scotland. February 12, 1814, South Berwick known as the Lower Parish was taken from the south side, and North Berwick the eastern part of the Upper Parish from the North-east, March 22, 1831. Thus the town of Berwick at its incorporation comprised all that is now North, South and the present Berwick, with the exception of a small triangular piece, taken from York, and annexed to South Berwick in 1834. The conditions in the town for agricultural interests are excellent, and this branch of industry is prosperous. The soil is very fertile. Forests of pine, hemlock and spruce abound, although much has been cut during the past few years, and ever finds a ready market. The railroad facilities are good. The western branch of the Boston and Maine runs through the western part of the town.

The description of this most historic town would be incomplete were we to forget the picturesque scenery along the banks of its rivers, the ancient landmarks the reminders of the past and the old family burying grounds, the resting place of many a heroic pioneer. Nor would we pass by the sacred battle-grounds hallowed by the sacrifice of life in the encounters with the Red Man. As we view this magnificent panorama we can truly say with the poet, "True and great were those who sowed that which we now reap."

Indian History.

The story of the Indian is ever interesting to students of history. Few and simple were his laws, yet more generally observed than the numerous enactments of civilized nations which fill many volumes of statute books. The Indian history of Berwick centers about three distinct tribes of red men. The Newichawannocks living on the banks of the Piscataqua; the Sokokis, or Saco tribe, in the vicinity of the Saco River, and several tribes living in Canada. The first tribe the Newichawannocks, called by Williamson, the Piscataquas, are best known to the people of Berwick, living as they did, almost side by side with the early settlers of the town, the early pioneers considering them good neighbors. Unlike many of their neighboring tribes, this race of Indians was ever peaceful with the whites. Abused, neglected and even cheated out of their own homes by many of the settlers, yet they never retaliated with the hatchet. Their acts of friendship were of no small number. They sold land to the whites, and traded with them their spoils of archery. Rowles, their Sagamore, sold land to Humphrey Chadbourne and Thomas Spencer, the former being the oldest Indian deed in the records of Maine. We are ever reminded of this race by the historic Indian names, given by them to different parts of the town, and many of which are kept today.

The second tribe, the Sokokis, are perhaps known as well as the former but not with the same interest and feeling. Unlike the Newichawannocks, these Indians were ever ready to injure the whites, and found many opportunities to do so. This race lived to the east of the Saco River as far as the Passamaquoddy, and are known as the Saco Indians. The mention of the name, King Phillip, is sufficient to acquaint the reader with this tribe.

The last, the tribes of Canada, are best known in the French and Indian war. The story of that conflict, is known well to the reader, and the part acted by these Indians, gives us a good insight into their character. The early pioneers got along fairly well at first with the red men. Perhaps this condition was caused more by fear than by friendship, knowing as he did that all quarrels with the white men would be ruinous to the Indian. Finally this tranquility was broken, the red men influenced by the French, and encouraged by their chieftains, and aware that their hunting grounds would soon be overrun by the whites, and a condition of hostilities was brought about. Berwick situated as she was, an inland town facing the unbroken forests, the home of the painted warrior, was among the first to be assailed. Her period of suffering and blood-shed covers many years. Hostilities began with the opening of King Phillip's war, 1675. Squando the Sagamore of the Saco tribe was the leader in the movement. He desired revenge against the whites for an act of injury and insult (as he claimed when persuading his own race to take up arms) against himself and his race. It seems that at one time his squaw was passing along the Saco River in a canoe, with her infant child, when she was accosted by several rude sailors who having heard that the Indian children could swim as naturally as the young of the lower animals, approached her, and in a fit of humor overset the canoe to try the experiment. The child sank, and though the mother diving, brought it up alive, it soon after died, and the parents claimed its death was due to the ill-treatment.

Other causes for an opening of war, were brought forward, yet the spirit of jealousy no doubt caused the movement. The Indians first attacked the settlements near Saco, and then proceeded towards the Piscataqua river, intending to make an assault upon any defenceless place. The first place to be assailed was the dwelling house of Mr. Richard Tozier, situated where is now the residence of Mr. Charles Collins, on the South Berwick road a short distance from the railroad. Mr. Tozier and the men of his neighborhood were absent at the time, as they had gone to the aid of Saco, when help was requested. Mr. Tozier's family consisted of fifteen persons all women and children. Upon this defenceless family the Indians made an attack. Their approach was first discovered by a "young heroess" as she is termed, who while the rest of the family were escaping, kept the door fast against the Indians, until they chopped it down with their hatchets, with which they knocked her senseless. But the poor maid who had ventured her life to save many others, was, by a strange providence enabled to recover sufficient strength after they were gone to find her way to a near by garrison where she was healed of her wounds and restored to perfect health.

The savages on the day following set fire to the house and buildings of Captain Wilcoln and reduced them to ashes. Some of the men from garrisons pursued the fleeing Indians but night-fall checked their endeavors. These two attacks nerved the settlers to action. Troops were sent from Boston to aid the settlements, and everything possible was done to meet another attack. It is said that some sections went so far as to offer a bounty of $5.00 for every Indian scalp secured.

A letter addressed to two gentlemen at Dover communicates the distress of that place. "To Richard Waldron and Lieutenant Coffin: These are to inform you that the Indians are just now engaging us with at least one hundred men and have already slain four of our men, Richard Tozier, James Berry, Isaac Bottes and Tozier's son, and burned Benoni Hodsdon's house. Sirs, if ever you have any love for us, show yourselves with men to help us, or else we are in great danger of being slain, unless our God wonderfully appears for our deliverance. They that cannot fight let them pray. Roger Plaisted, George Broughton." Mr. Tozier's residence was the object of a second attack. The following month on October 16, Mr. Tozier was killed and his son carried into captivity. Lieutenant Roger Plaisted, the commander of the garrison, sent a portion of his men to the rescue, but, falling into an ambush, they finally made their escape, not however, until three of their number were slain.

Mr. Plaisted then set out with a party to recover the three bodies of his fallen comrades and was attacked by one hundred and fifty Indians. In the battle which followed Mr. Plaisted, one son and a third man was killed. A second son died soon afterward of wounds received in the fight. He and his two sons were buried on his own land near the battle ground in full view from the highway. Their lettered tombstones bear this inscription, "Near this place lies buried the body of Roger Plaisted, who was killed by the Indians, October 16, 1675, aged 48 years, also the body of his son, Roger Plaisted, who was killed at the same time."

This burying spot is in full view of the road from Berwick village to South Berwick, and has been enclosed by an iron railing. In retiring, the Indians burned several buildings and killed a number of settlers. The town again suffered an attack in the French and Indian war (1688-92). In March 18, 1690 the most famous attack was made upon Newichawannock. A band of Indians led by Hartel, a Canadian officer, and the famous Hopegood, made the assault upon the settlement at daybreak, in three different places. The defenders of the settlement fought heroically but were finally forced to surrender, but not until over thirty of their number were slain. The remaining number, fifty-four, mostly women and children, were taken captive. The enemy burned all the houses and mills as far as the Great Works river, then after taking all the plunder they could carry, retreated northward.

The enemy were pursued by a party of one hundred and forty men who came upon them at Worster's Brook at a narrow bridge. Hartel, expecting an attack, placed his men in an advantageous position on the banks of the stream. They fought all the afternoon but with little loss on either side. The French and Indians held their pursuers in check until night and then continued their retreat, tormenting their captives with shocking cruelty. Among these unfortunate captives was Mrs. Mehitable Goodwin, Hetty Goodwin as she was always called, who was taken by the Indians with her husband and baby. The husband and wife were separated by two parties of savages, and set forth on their long and tedious journey to Canada, each believing the other to be dead and leaving behind them their comfortable farm on a beautiful hill near Plaisted Garrison. In the early part of the march one of the Indians snatched the babe from its mother's arms and dashed its head against a stone; and when the poor mother dragged her weary steps behind the rest and could not still her cries, they threatened to kill her in the same way if she did not stop weeping. At night fall she was stooping over a brook trying to wash a bloody handkerchief and her tears were falling fast again. She forgot the threat of her captives. Suddenly a compassionate squaw, pitying the poor lonely mother, threw some water in her face as if in derision. "This squaw had a mother's heart," the old people used to say in telling the story in Canada. The captives suffered great hardships, and "Hetty Goodwin, a well off woman" was sometimes so hungry that she stole food from the pigs. She was bought at last by a Frenchman and supposing her husband to be dead and despairing of ever reaching home again she married him and bore two children. Their names corrupt from the French were Rand; and the Plymouth family of the name is said to be descended from them. The captive husband afterwards gained his freedom and being informed that his wife was still alive went back to Canada and found her and brought her back, after which they lived unmolested and were the parents of many children. Hetty Goodwin's halt buried head stone may still be seen in the Old Fields burying ground.

Robert Rogers being unable to carry the burden which they had imposed upon him, dropped it in the path and went aside in the woods to conceal himself. The Indians when they had found him tortured him in the most cruel manner. They first stripped him and after beating him with clubs tied him to a stake and kindled a fire about him. The Indians would not let him have a speedy death but would push the fire towards him then draw it away, so as to give him a chance to breath thus prolonging his sufferings. The noise of the groans of the dying man was drowned, by the hideous yells of the Indians, as they danced about him, cutting off pieces of flesh and throwing it into his face. This was all done in view of the other captives.

Mary Ferguson, a young girl, burst into tears because of the hugh burden that was placed upon her, and declared she could go no further. An Indian led her aside and cut off her head holding it up exclaiming "so I will do with you all if you cry or complain." Mary Plaisted was taken with a child three weeks old and forced to travel through the snow. To ease her of her burden they dashed the child against a tree and hung it upon one of its branches, telling the mother she might come that way again and have the pleasure of seeing it.

These are a few instances of the way that those who were taken captive in that battle were treated. The journey to Canada, through swamps, heavily burdened, with scanty clothing and food, cannot be pictured on paper.

In July 1690, Hopegood, a leader in the first attack again appeared on the scene, with a gang of ruffins and proceeded to burn the settlement of the town. The entire settlement (not the whole of Berwick) was wiped out. The settlement known as Salmon Falls was destroyed but because of the strength of the whites the Indians did not venture below the Great Works river.

As a specimen of the character of Hopegood an incident is told of his cruelty to a small boy whom he had taken captive. James Keay, a boy five years old is the one referred to and because he was lonely and cried for his parents, They stripped him and having tied him to a tree whipped him until he was covered with blood, to stop his crying. Soon after he had a sore eye, and Hopegood said it was caused by crying and then he turned it from its socket with with his thumb. Afterwards when the child could not keep up in traveling he split its head open with a hatchet.

In 1703, four men were killed and several taken prisoners. The Indians on the 26th of September of that year attacked a garrison in the south part of the town but were repulsed.

A few years later a large party of Indians were captured by the whites at Eliot and taken as captives to Boston where some were executed. The capture was accomplished by means of a council being held at which the Indians were present on invitation, and during the events of the day a sham battle was suddenly converted into an attacking party and the Indians were captured with lightning-like rapidity.

Major Charles Frost of Eliot was hated by the Indians because of his activity and success in fighting them, and they resolved upon his death. He was shot while returning from Great Works on July 4, 1697. Dennis Downing and the wife of John Heard were killed at the same time. Mr. Heard escaped.

We are told that the Indians dug up Mr. Frost's body and hoisted it upon a pole at the top of Frost's Hill.

His grave was afterward covered over by a very heavy flat stone which bore a plain inscription. The spot where he was slain is now known as "Ambush Rock."

At the same or nearly the same time James Goodwin and two other persons were slain while at work in their fields.

On May 4, 1705, many persons were surprised near Spruce Creek. Three were killed and several more were taken captives. Enoch Hutchins was the heaviest sufferer, he losing his wife and family at that time. On the twenty-first of that same month James Tobey and his son, James, were slain in the woods by the Indians. John Rogers was wounded but succeeded in escaping.

On June 6, 1706, Lieutenant John Shapleigh was killed and his son, Nicholas, taken prisoner and carried to Canada. Ten days later Phillip Carpenter, his wife and four children were slain at Spruce Creek.

On September 30, of the following year, James Ferguson and wife were slain by the redskins as they were returning from the meeting house in Berwick.

We might enumerate many other instances of the bloody hand of the savage, for he was ever ready to wield that deadly weapon upon his supposed menacer, yet it would only prejudice us against him.

The savage, cruel as he was, had many good qualities, and also many grievances at the hands of his pale faced neighbors. Whatever we may feel to be the true estimate of the Indian, we must not lose sight of the fact that he was a semi-barbarian and was being robbed of his former home. He fought according to the methods of the Indian race and is not to be blamed for that. Our course should be to treat as well as possible this race, forced to the west and made destitute of lands, home and nationality.

Early Settlement

Who owned Berwick—First White Visitor—Lower Settlement—Berwick's Date of Settlement—Settlers—Second Influx of Settlers—Grants of Land—Growth of Settlements—Friends or Quakers—Witchcraft Past—Present.

In tracing the early settlement of Berwick, the writer does not intend to give extended details, for space does not permit, but will narrate the more important events in as concise and chronological a manner as possible. In giving the history of the present Berwick, the writer must take the reader back to the first settlement in what was originally Berwick, trace out the gradual trend of the people as they populated the three Berwicks. Berwick was originally a part of the possessions of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, a man of great integrity and whose influence and liberality made possible the establishment of permanent settlements at Saco, York and Kittery.

The first white person to set foot on Berwick soil was no doubt Martin Pring. He, through the aid and influence of the city officials and merchants of the city of Bristol, England, actually visited our coast with two vessels on June 7, 1603. Soon after, he explored the region of the Piscataqua up as far as Berwick, some three or four leagues, so the records read. Gorges in his history says, Pring made a perfect survey of all these rivers and harbors and brought the most exact account of the coast that had come to hand. Captain Batholomew Gosnold sailed from England the previous year, 1602, but visited only the coast of Maine. Pring's pilot on this second voyage (it is said) was one of the sailors in the Gosnold expedition. These proofs and others are sufficient to convince us that this region along the Piscataqua was visited by white people before the Jameston settlement, 1607. Piscataqua, below the present South Berwick line, between that town and Eliot was settled (it is safe to say) as early as 1623.

The exact date of the first settlement in Berwick is a problem for solution. Depositions are given that would imply that it was settled at an earlier date than was possible. One record reads that a Mr. Thompson's grant was bounded on the east by the old county road, as it was settled in 1608. This we know cannot be true. Often the statement is made that Piscataqua was settled as early as 1623-24, but as this applied to the whole region we cannot use it as absolute proof for Berwick's date settlement. The fact is that we do not know when the first person settled in the limits of the three Berwicks but we are not safe in placing the first settlement before 1631. All historians agree in placing Ambrose Gibbens the first settler of Berwick. Mr. Gibbens did not come over from England until 1630, and at that time explored the town in the interest of the Laconia Company, of which he was an agent, in this section of the country. There is positive proof of the time of his arrival. After exploring the town he went away returning the following year, 1631, when he made a settlement near Quamphegan Falls, the head of navigation on the Piscataqua. The following year 1632 his wife and daughter, then a young lady, came to live with him.

In a letter written in 1633, dated at Newichawanock, the Indian name for Berwick, Gibbens states that he is far from any white neighbors, and his household consists of his family and four men whose names were Thomas Blake, Thomas Crockett, Stephen Kidder and Charles Knill. This letter implies that there was no settlement near him at this time. There probably were travellers interested in various enterprises moving up and down the river, for in that same letter Gibbens speaks of his household usually numbering ten. Mr.

Gibbens did not remain long in Berwick, for we have a record of his being in New Hampshire in 1634. In fact he took out a grant of land on the New Hampshire side opposite the junction of the Great Works river with the Piscataqua. The Dover records contain the grant.

In 1634 a shipload of immigrants came from England and passed up the Piscataqua. As the list containing the names of all the passengers who were on that vessel has been lost we do not know all who came over, or where each one settled. Some no doubt, went to York, and the towns in New Hampshire, but we do know that the following settled in Berwick, Henry Joslyn, William Chadbourne, James Wall and John Goddard. Thomas Spencer is known to have settled in town the same year. Some of these men remained all their lives in town, while others afterwards moved away. The first explorers in Berwick found the lands about the Great Works and Salmon rivers a dense wilderness.

The vicinity about the Quamphegan Falls first attracted the white settler. Here he could easily obtain the necessities of life for himself and family until the ground began to yield part of their support. The Salmon and Great Works river, on whose banks they had settled, furnished an abundance of fish, while the forests abounded with game. It is impossible to give a correct list of the early settlers of Berwick. As a period of twenty years passed before any of them took out grants of land, there would be nothing on the records to show their names. It was not until 1650, that grants of any extent were given. Those persons who wished to take out land received a grant from the General Court. Those who took out the first grants received more than those who applied later. Some received as high as a thousand acres but in most cases the grants were given out in equal lots. The first deed of land on record was the one made to Humphrey Chadbourne by the noted Sagamore Rowles.

The land extended above the Great Works River. The date of the purchase was 1643 and Thomas Spencer was a witness to the transaction. Twenty years after the first grant, the land in the vicinity of Quamphegan was all taken up. The following persons are among the earliest settlers who took out, or came into possession of grants already taken out by others, along the river in the present town of South Berwick: Thomas Spencer, Richard Nason, Alexander Maxwell, Alexander Cooper, Nathan Lord, James Warren, John Taylor, John Lamb, James Emery, Peter Grant, John Green, Thomas Abbott, Daniel Goodwin, Sr., Daniel Goodwin, Jr., James Emery, Phillip Hubbard, John Wincoll, Roger Plaisted, Benoni Hodsdon, Nicholas Hodsdon and Miles Thompson. Other early settlers were as follows: Richard Leader, William Spencer, Tom Tinker, James Heard, Daniel Hubbard, Richard Abbott, Daniel Ferguson, William Thompson, George Rogers, Nicholas Frost, Theodius Redder, Andrew Searl, James Barnard, Anthony Emery, James Grant, Ichabod Goodwin, John Falls, Samuel Falls, John Connor, Michael Rhoades, James Plaisted, Patrick Gowen, Nicholas Morrill, Elisha Plaisted, Alexander Ferguson, John Hooper, John Croude, Thomas Deering, Joseph Couch, Ichabod Tibbetts, Richard Tozier, William Piles, James Barry, William Love, Roger Plaisted. Others might be mentioned but this constitutes a greater part of list. For a period of 120 years the early settlers did not venture far from their first place of settlement which was in direct communication with the coast. Their choice of early settlement was a good one, for Quamphegan is always one of the most beautiful and attractive places in the world.

It is not surprising that a small settlement which we might term a well populated country road was established here, for Gibbens could not have found a more delightful place were he to search far and wide. Quamphegan Falls was so called by the Indians and meant "the place where fish were taken in nets." Here they could carry on their choice of occupation with the rivers furnishing excellent water power and the forests an abundance of timber. The taste for manufacturing and lumbering, rather than farming seems to have attracted our forefathers to settle here. Here along the bank of the river a landing was built, a trading post established, and a church and school-house erected. In short the early pioneers did what they could to make their surroundings agreeable and their lives happy.

These early pioneers were a hardy people of rough exterior, ever kind and hospitable, yet always on the alert to see that their quiet and easy life was not endangered. All doubtful adventurers were excluded from the town. In 1634 it was ordered that "no person or persons whatsoever shall be admitted into this town without a license from the selectmen thereof" and "if any inhabitant of this town shall receive any such person into his house contrary to the above said order that any such inhabitant shall give any security unto the select men as they shall require, to save and keep harmless the town from any such person so received." Later a notice was given "to leave the town" or "be dragged out; having had fifteen days previous notice." The settlers came very slowly at first. In fact after the managers Mason & Gorges had ceased to support their plantations on the Piscataqua, the colonies were loosing ground. The proprietors various schemes of amassing wealth in these colonies had only enriched the settlers themselves.

It was not until the Civil wars between Charles II and Parliament that the first impulse came to the colonies after the original settlement. When Cromwell gained a decisive victory over the royal troops at Dunbar in the north, he, not knowing how to better dispose of his prisoners, banished them from their own country, England, and sent them to America.

The settlements along the Piscataqua received many of these refugees. Some attracted by the bustling settlement along the Great Works, Piscataqua and Salmon Falls rivers were induced to settle here. Among those who came at this time were many from the ancient hamlet of Berwick in Yorkshire. These people probably gave the town its present name. The spelling of the name in the old records is Ber(v)ick and pronounced as if it were spelled Berrick. So slowly did the settlers spread over the town that no settlements were made above Worster's Brook until after the Indian wars.

In 1713 Berwick was the most inland settlement towards Canada and the inhabitants were kept in a constant state of alarm. All houses before 1715 were of hewn logs. Some were erected larger and stronger than others, for a place of refuge, when suffering an attack from the Indians. Among those nearest the settlement at that time were the Shorey and Neal Garrisons below Old Field, the Spencer Wentworth, Kay, Tozier and Plaisted Garrisons near Salmon Falls, and later a fort on Pine Hill, north of Steep Falls, surrounded by a stockade of sharpened poles twenty feet in height. It was not until the cession of Canada by France, to Great Britain, (1763) that the people began to venture far from the first settlement. The influx of immigrants compelled the settlers to scatter throughout the town.

The demand for lumber to operate the mills was another cause. The region in this section of the county was famous for mast or spar timber, which was shipped in large quantities to England. The old mast road is well known to the most of the people living near the Great Works river.

The fear for the Indian had passed away, for the French could no longer influence them to harm the settlers. The town later experienced two great periods of excitement, the coming of the Quakers and the Salem Witchcraft. The Friends, as they are termed, were terribly persecuted in New Hampshire. Some were taken in the dead of winter and plunged into the water, through a hole in the ice. Three women at Dover, New Hampshire, were made fast to a cart's tail and driven from town and whipped on their bare backs, ten stripes each, till they were beyond the jurisdiction of the colony. John Hurd of Kittery, who saw the outrage, is said to have asked them if the ropes were the cords of the covenant.

It was partly through his influence that this sect immigrated to the town. They received no persecution to any extent, on this side of the Piscataqua, although a Mr. Richard Nason was disfranchised for harboring one of them in his house. It is an interesting fact to know that the first meeting of the Friends or Quakers (as they were then called) in the Province of Maine was at Newichawannock, in December 1662. Superstition is ever present with the people. It was so to a greater extent among the early pioneers of our town than among its people today.

Yet! hardly a day passes but we hear some illusion to the old notions. If we credit some of the stories, there may have been witches in Berwick. The Beaver Dam witch, Old Marea, as she was called, is said to have caused much trouble to those who did not do as she wished. Many queer stories are connected with her. She is said to have lived near a sand bank in an old hovel near the road, at Beaver Dam. If anything went wrong the people said it was the work of the witches. It is said that at one time a person was churning but the butter would not come so as usual the members of the family said that some one present was bewitched. To discover the evil spirit and to overcome it, they laid a file across the churn, then a member present read a chapter from the Bible. The result was as they expected, the butter soon came and the person bewitched immediately broke her leg. The old story of the "Witch Trot Road," a name handed down to us, is very interesting, but too long to give but in brief. Rev. Stephen Burrows, accused of witchcraft, was summoned for trial and two constables and another person, his enemies, were sent to conduct him hither. Mr. Burrows suggested that they take a short cut through the woods, which was accepted, but they had not ventured far when a thunder storm arose, leaving them in darkness. The party, except Mr. Burrows, were almost frightened to death, and succeeded with difficulty in getting through the woods. The arising of the storm at that time was enough to convince the three men that the parson had supernatural power. This occurrence gave to it its present name "Witch Trot Road," situated in South Berwick.

The people after the Indian wars soon began to leave the centers of business, Great Works and the section about Salmon Falls, and to take out grants of land in the present towns of Berwick and North Berwick. These were largely the descendents of the early pioneer who settled South Berwick. It is a noticeable fact that those who ventured thus far traveled the banks of the rivers as they moved back into the dense forest. These persons did not reach the present town of North Berwick much before 1750. The first settlement was made near Doughty's Falls, named probably for the family of that name who were there.

The Morrills, Puringtons, Hobbs, Husseys and Buffums are said to be the first settlers. The earliest settlers on Beach Ridge were: William and Silas Hall, Benjamin, Joseph, Thomas and Silas Hurd. The north, east and west parts of the town were settled by Samuel Hurd, John Falls, and S. Roberts. The northwest was settled first by John Libby. The following are other early settlers John R. Randall, Daniel Quint, Samuel Hanscom, Hercules Fernald, Daniel Quint, Staples family, Christopher Hammond, Samuel Hurd, John Fall, S. Roberts and John Libby. The Quakers were among the early settlers.

The increase in manufacturies soon induced many to immigrate to the town. The movement from Salmon Falls was similar to that of Great Works. Up the river they journeyed but very slowly at first. The present town of Berwick was not settled before 1650. The first grant of land was made to Roger Plaisted in 1654. Plaisted no doubt lived here three or four years before he obtained his grant. The old burial spot where he now lies can be seen from the South Berwick road and marks the place of his settlement. Grants were soon taken along the river on the same road by Richard Tozier, William Piles, John Wilcoln, James Barry and William Love. Soon they came toward Blackberry Hills, so named because of the abundance of that specie of berry found by the explorers. Among the first here was James Chadbourne, John Woodsum, Samuel Brackett and John Morse. This section soon became the leading portion of the upper part of the old town. Here churches, school-houses, stores and even a hotel was built. It was what we might term the upper village of the town. The old burying ground is still there with its ancient tombstones reminding us of this once important and historic part of the town. Beaver dam was soon visited by the settlers. Among the first here and to the north at Diamond Hill were those families by the name of Chick, Andrews, Grant, Goodrich, Guptill, Skillings, Murray and Goodwins'.

It is said that Joshua Andrews, one of the earliest in that section walked to Amesbury, Mass., and gave a man twenty dollars to tell him how to catch wolves.

He also bought a trap for that same purpose on that trip. That trap is now in the possession of one of his descendents who lives on the same lot of land. The town records inform us that Mr. Andrews received money from the town on several occasions for the bounty on the wolves that he caught and killed.

Cranberry Meadow was settled by William Frost, Stephen Hardison, Humphrey Lord, Elisha Goodwin, Nicholas Lord and Ebenezer Brown. The first on Pine Hill were Thomas Downs, John Fall, William Downs, Benjamin Herson and Benjamin Lord, Jr.

The present site of Berwick village was not settled before 1749. The first house, (log-cabin) was erected by Ebenezer Lord, great-grandfather of the late George W. Lord on the site of the present house, Berwick street.

Incorporation

Berwick was incorporated the ninth town, June 9, 1713, and then included what is now Berwick and North and South Berwick. Previous to this was a parish of Unity set off as such by the town Kittery, too poor as was supposed, to ever form a separate town.

Before it was incorporated it had annually elected its board of three selectmen.

The first regular town meeting was held in the old meeting house at Old Fields, South Berwick, and the following officers were chosen: Humphrey Chadbourne, town clerk; Benjamin Nason, John Croude, Elisha Plaisted, James Emery and James Grant, selectmen; John Hooper, treasurer; Benjamin Nason served as moderator.

The town meeting of our forefathers attended to the transaction of the minutest details of every day life, as well as those of greater importance. Their civil and religious problems were both on the equal footing and received the same attention. There the schoolmaster was appointed, his salary apportioned; the preacher was chosen; money was raised for the support of the gospel; and even the sexton was selected to ring the bell and keep tidy the place of worship. Benoni Bragdon, a faithful servant as he is called, held this position for a number of years, and was obliged, as his contract read, to sweep out the house once in three months.

October 22, 1701—Voted to build a new meeting house for the use of the inhabitants of the parish, they, finding the old house not worth repairing. Building committee—Capt. Ichabod Plaisted, Richard Tozier, John Hill, Thomas Abbott, Benjamin Nason, Charles Frost, Nathan Lord, Humphrey Spencer, Benoni Hodsdon.

January 27, 1703—Voted Daniel Emery and Nathan Lord, committee, to give Mr. Wise, a minister of Saco, an invitation to preach in this parish.

March 5, 1707—Voted to build a meeting house 36 feet square.

1709—Voted Nathan Lord, assessor.

1713—Voted Samuel Lord a pew in the church.

1714—Voted Nathan Lord to take contributions in the church.

1719—Voted that Mr. Bradstreet shall teach school in the town house by Mr. Spencer's.

At a legal town meeting April 18, 1729—Voted that money shall be raised from this town for defending any person or persons belonging to this town of Berwick, who shall have any logs seized by the surveyors, which were cut within this township. Voted sixty pounds shall be raised forthwith to defray the charge of carrying on that affair, and that the selectmen shall hire the money.

April 20, 1713—Voted at a legal parish meeting, William Richard and Samuel Lord each a pew, they paying two pounds each.

March 22, 1714—Voted William Lord, pound keeper for the ensuing year.

July 30, 1717—Blackberry Hill road laid out, beginning at Derty Swamp bridge, four rods wide to Blackberry Hill.

1716—Voted for protection against wolves, a bounty of twenty shillings each, besides what the law offered was paid by the town. The town also voted a bounty to encourage the keeping of ferocious bulls.

January 15, 1749—Voted to divide the parish.

1751—Voted that “the master teach two weeks at one point, then two weeks at another, returning in each of the six schools in town.”

1790—An attempt was made by the south parish to form itself into a separate town, with the parish line as the proposed boundary. A petition was addressed to the General Court, but was unsuccessful. Later another attempt was made with the same result. The third attempt in 1813 was successful.

The town of South Berwick was set off from Berwick and incorporated as a separate town February 12, 1814. The first town meeting was held in the old south church meeting house at Old Fields. Later the old Baptist church on what is now Portland street was used for the purpose. Here Judge Hayes or Hon. John P. Lord usually presided. Thomas Jewett was a prominent man and took great interest in annual appropriations. Elder Jedediah Goodwin was quite often town auditor and read his report in open town meeting. Captain A. J. Goodwin generally addressed the meeting and was noted for his witty remarks and sharp sarcasm.

Later, as the town advanced, a town house was constructed at what is now South Berwick Junction; this house is now used by the Christian church as a house of worship, but was retained for town purposes until the meetings were first held in the present place of assembly.

In 1834 a small triangular piece was annexed to South Berwick from York, and in 1881 a portion of Berwick containing five hundred and forty-four people was added to this town. South Berwick in 1900 contained 3,188 population.

Military Matters

Few towns of the Province of Maine took a more active part in the war for independence than did the town of Berwick, then comprising the present towns of Berwick, and North and South Berwick. W. D. Spencer has compiled a list of names comprising over two hundred and sixty citizens, and from all we can learn practically every able bodied man between the ages of sixteen and sixty served in some capacity for their liberty. Mr. Spencer tells us that many times during the Revolution horsemen were sent to Andover, Mass., for lead. Under date of April 23, 1776 appears an order, "To Freathy Spencer for twelve shillings, it being for his time a Running Bullets for this town."

During the Revolution two full companies went from Berwick under the command of Captain Phillip

Hubbard and Daniel Wood. Several hardy sailors from this town sailed with Captain Paul Jones on his voyages. Aaron Goodwin, a Berwick man, with seven of his comrades under Jones, were captured and taken to England where they were imprisoned. They effected their escape by digging under the wall, making their way to the coast, seizing a small boat and crossing into France.

Several men served from this town in the war of 1812. In 1814 the town chose as a committee of safety Col. Joshua Hasen, Col. Ichabod Goodwin, Hon. Benjamin Greene, Hon. Jesse Bradbury and Dr. Richard Hazeltine. These men were authorized to provide rations and munitions of war suitable for the occasion and aid was also requested from the State, but the town did not suffer an attack.

REBELLION

The town of South Berwick furnished at different calls for the Civil war over one hundred and ninety-two men and $40,500 bounty was paid from its town treasury. The following is a list of the soldiers who enlisted as citizens of this town.

Manufacturing Notes

The first settlers in this region found the land covered with a growth of very valuable timber; this naturally led the people to lumbering, and the various other industries that follow, such as manufacturing it into lumber, building of ships, and coasting it down the river. The whole attention of the early settlers seems to have been directed to the manufacture of lumber, for the forests were stripped with astonishing rapidity. Shingles and pine boards were legal tender "delivered at the landing when the sloops ran" or were exchanged with the merchants for rum, molasses and similar merchandise, thought necessities of life.

A mill was erected at Great Works at a very early date. All persons wanting timber received a grant or permit to cut it upon the common lands. In 1650 Richard Leader was granted all the rights and priviledges of mill power on the little river known as the Newichawannock, with liberty and like property in all timber not yet appropriated to any town or person. He immediately erected a large mill carrying eighteen saws. He was also granted permission to cut pine timber along the river as far up as the town limits extended. He was restricted in width to one-half mile on each side of the river. Mr. Leader acquired wealth for his lumber speculations and it is said that the vastness of Mr. Leader's operations gave to the river its present name, Great Works.

Mr. Leader was followed by Humphrey Chadbourne, who had lumber camps about the Great Works river, as early as 1670, where he got out lumber for his mills. From the time of Mr. Chadbourne's mill to the present time that section at Great Works has always had a mill in operation. In 1660 Captain Broughton agreed to erect a mill on his lot at Quamphegan Falls, and to saw on halves any logs that the inhabitants might get upon the timber lands above. A mill was also owned and run by Thomas Wiggin and Simon Bradstreet at the same falls.

Other mills at Great Works of a more recent date were the ones operated by Deacon Foote, James T. Patterson and Timothy Ferguson. Mr. Foote acquired quite a notoriety in his day for his custom cloth mill, which at that time was the only one of its kind in this section of the country.

James T. Patterson, an Englishman, operated his woolen mill about the year 1840. Timothy Ferguson, who later originated the cotton mill at the landing, was in business in his mill at what is known as Lee's and Yeaton's mill at the junction of the Great Works and Salmon Falls rivers, about the year 1830. This plant, a woolen mill was burned in 1842. The Cotton Mill at the landing on Quamphegan Falls was in operation in 1832. It was built by a Portsmouth Company who did quite an extensive business for a number of years until the plant was moved south. The present shoe factory in town was established in 1872. This was the outgrowth of a small business established first at Springvale, in Sanford, Maine.

Newichawannock Woolen Company at Great Works was organized in March 1854 with a capital of $100,000. In 1859, at the lower dam, was built a brick mill 40x80 and five stories high. This mill is one of the best industries in town.

SHIP BUILDING

The ship building at the lower landing was quite an important industry in the early history of our town. Capt. T. F. Jewett, constructed several vessels on his ship yards at the landing. About the year 1830 he built the ship "Remick" which was commanded by Capt. Samuel W. Jewett, son of Capt. T. F. Jewett. This ship is supposed to have been lost with all hands on board, seventeen members, east of the Cape of Good Hope, in April 1846, while bound for the East Indies. A Danish ship is supposed to have run down this vessel in the night.

In 1846 Mr. Eben Goodwin of New York and his brother, Mark F. Goodwin, built a brig at Jewett's wharf at the lower landing called the "Picard." It was sold to Capt. Bush of New York the following year. The same parties constructed the large "Elizabeth" which was a splendid vessel, and was commanded by Capt. Young of York. The story is told that the vessel received its name from two young ladies of that day, one living in South Berwick and the other in Rollinsford, whom Mr. Young was quite fond of.

The building of Gundalows was carried on quite extensively before the railroad came into this section. The timber was hauled to the landings in the winter and from thence transported in these boats to Portsmouth, New Hampshire from which place it was shipped to other states. It was no common occurrence to see at least one dozen of these flat bottomed sloops going down the river line in line. Sometimes there would be on the stocks in construction two or three boats at a time. The demand for these made quite an extensive ship carpentering industry.

Educational Account

The first school kept at the expense of the town was in 1714. The first school master on the town records is Mr. Rock, some places spelled Rockes. Mr. Rock was chosen master in 1716, at a salary of forty pounds. John Bradstreet, the second master was hired to teach in a private house until a school house should be erected. In 1718, the same year that he was chosen master, the house was completed. This was the first school house erected in town and must have been at Old Fields. Stephen Emery, James Pike, Joseph Newmarch, and Master Sullivan are other school masters who taught at a very early date. Stephen Emery was to take his pay "one-half in boards and one-half in "Pub bills". Mr. Pike taught in the town as early as 1726. Josph Newmarch was master in 1727, and was hired "to teach reading, writing and spelling," so the records read.

In 1724 two school houses stood above the Great Works river. School was kept in six places in 1749. One master taught in them all. He was hired to teach two weeks at one point then two at another, returning. In 1758 a whole school year, the first of its kind, was kept in the Upper Parish, and two whole years schools were held in town in 1761. Five years later a committee to better regulate schools for the future was chosen after which the schools were regularly kept.

In 1770 one hundred and forty pounds was voted for four or five months summer school. This was followed by the town, twenty years later, voting that teachers should present a certificate of good moral character before they could be hired to teach. The same year a plan was made agreeable to the new law and in 1791 an Academy was incorporated. This was the beginning of our present Academy of which we shall speak later under a separate heading.

COMMON SCHOOLS

From the year 1800 to the present time schools were kept in various parts of the town. It is interesting to know that in 1837 school was kept in the old Congregational meeting house at Great Works. A Miss Thompson, daughter of Rev. J. S. Thompson, was the teacher. The school met in the gallery of the old church. Mr. Thomas Goodwin, from whom we received this fact of interest, was a pupil attending the school at the time when it met at that place. Previous to this time the scholars in what is now district No. 2, Battle street, attended school in Vine street, near the Vineyard. The house was known as the "little red school house." Coming up to South Berwick village; we have a building that stood on Portland street, near the present soldiers' monument. This was occupied prior to the erection of the grammar school building on Goodwin street. To the more recent town school houses we need no acquaintance.

Gradual has been the development of our public schools until to-day the town may justly be proud of its system of education. The present excellent system of schools is the result of a steady growth, noticeable and rapid for the last fifteen years. The village schools and those at Great Works are graded, while the rural schools are conducted as far as practicable along the lines of the best graded schools. A standard for promotion and for graduation has been established. The committee requires that, to be eligible for promotion or for graduation, the pupil shall have secured an average for the year of not less than 60 per cent in each separate study. This average is to be found by using all the marks given during the year, both in daily recitations and in examination.

The town expended for common schools for the year 1903, $5,773.24. The number of students attending school was: Spring term, 562; Fall term, 533; Winter term, 555. Total valuation of school property $21,000. The town to-day offers to her pupils in the town school opportunities for securing an education second to none among towns of similar size, throughout the State. For this marked advancement we must give the praises to those of our town who have been directly or indirectly connected with its workings.

Especially should we mention the names of Rev. I. B. Mower, Dr. C. M. Sleeper, Rev. Zebulon Knight, W. H. Downs, Esq., and the present superintendent Rev. A. R. Paull. Mr. Mower was for nine years actively identified with the schools serving on the committee and holding the office of superintendent of schools. Dr. Sleeper has been connected with the committee for at least fifteen years out of the last twenty. Mr. Sleeper is at the present time chairman of the school committee. Mr. Knight has been on the committee for a long time. Mr. Downs is the newly elected member of the school board. Mention should also be made of the present superintendent Mr. Paull who, although having only held his present position for three years, has proven himself a faithful and energetic promoter of advanced ideals.

ACADEMY

The South Berwick Academy is one of which the town is justly proud, for few towns of its size in the state have as excellent an institution of learning. Hon. Benjamin Chadbourne may be called the founder of the school. In 1791 he gave ten acres of land which forms the present site of the school. He also gave liberally of money to start a subscription list, which soon carried subscriptions for £500 besides 200 acres of wild land, the further gift of Mr. Chadbourne and William Rogers. The charter granted by the General Court of Massachusetts bears the signature of John Hancock, the noted patriot.

Samuel Moody was the first master, his salary was £90 a year, and six pence a week from each pupil. Mr. Moody was succeeded by Joseph McKeen who soon after taught in Harvard College. The third master was Benjamin Green, a man of strong influence who subsequently became judge. Others of the early preceptors were: Messrs. Hilliard, Seaver, Holton, Young, Chase and Ward. The school was originally designed for boys alone, and not until 1828 was it thrown open to both sexes alike. That year there were four girls in attendance, the next year seventeen, but from that time the sexes have been very nearly equally represented in the school.

The school is now occupying the fourth building that has been erected for its use. The first building erected served until 1825 when it was moved to be replaced by a larger building to accomodate the increased number of students, and is now the residence of Miss Sarah A. Fernald at the "Landing." The second building was burned in the fall of 1851 but was soon replaced by a third, dedicated December 6, 1853, which still stands in one corner of the school lot.

The present building, a model of architecture, is the gift of Mrs. William H. Fogg, supplemented by that of her cousins, Hon. H. H. Fogg of Bangor, and the late Mrs John Phipps of Boston. This magnificent gift, together with the scholarships and prizes, the benovelences of other donators in the past, must inspire the youth as he enters its walls, to ideals of a higher intelectual, moral and spiritual life. Frank E. Nye A. D. is now the efficient principal.

Church History

The first meeting house in Berwick was built between 1659 and 1663, probably in 1660. At this date, what records are given, seem to prove that the people had a minister and a house of worship at that time. The house was situated in that part of the town known as Old Fields. Records give us the names of two early pastors, Rev. John Emerson and Rev. Edward Thompson. These men served the people prior to 1702. A vote is also recorded of the raising of money for the erection of a parsonage. This house and church must have stood near the site of the second meeting house on Battle street, Old Fields, near the house where Charles Hanscom now lives. October 14, 1791, it was voted to erect a new meeting house, they "finding the old one not worth repairing." The new meeting house was built at once and dedicated June 4, 1792. The house stood near the site of the Number two schoolhouse, on Battle street, Old Fields. This house was standing in 1845. It was used by the Methodists from 1829 to 1836, the new Congregational Church in South Berwick village, having been built about 1825.

CONGREGATIONAL

At the above date, June 4, 1792, the first Congregational Church in South Berwick was organized.

The number to join the church was seventeen. This might be called the beginning of denominations in our town, although there are strong proofs that this particular church should be given the honor of an earlier history than that date. We might place its beginning back to the building of the first church in town. Rev. John Wade was the first ordained minister. He was ordained November 18, 1702, and died November 13, 1703, aged twenty-eight years. Jeremiah Wise, the second ordained pastor of the church, was called November 26, 1707, and remained with them forty-nine years, till his death January 20, 1756, aged 77 years. Mr. Wise was followed by Rev. Jacob Foster, who was ordained at Great Works, in 1756. It was about this time that a second parish was organized on Blackberry Hill, now in Berwick. Rev. John Thompson followed Mr. Foster. He was installed at Great Works, May 7, 1783. He remained with them till his death, December 21, 1828. During his pastorage, the new church now occupied by the society, was built. This was done because this section of the town was becoming the most thickly settled, where heretofore, the real town was at Old Fields.

The following pastors have served the village church: Rev. Seth H. Keeler, 1829-36; Rev. Andrew Rakin, 1837-48; Rev. William B. Homer, 1840-41; Rev. Benjamin R. Allen, 1842-54; Rev. Alfred Emerson, 1857-58; Rev. Ephraim W. Allen, 1858-65; Rev. Sylvanus Hayward, 1866-73; Rev. George

Lewis, 1874 till the present time. This church is at the present time in a flourishing condition. To Mr. Lewis, their beloved pastor, who has been with them for a period of thirty years, much honor and praise is due for his persistent and ardent labors for the Christian cause, which has made possible the present favorable conditions.

BAPTIST

The second Baptist church organized in the State of Maine was here. The first interest was awakened at Great Hill, under the preaching of Rev. Hezekiah Smith, pastor of the Baptist church in Haverhill. Many at that time joined his church. A society consisting of seventeen members was organized June 28, 1768. A meeting-house was soon erected, and a little later a second one that stood on Portland street, and was afterward used for town meetings.

During these years the church had the following settled pastors: William Bachelder, Joshua Chase, Joseph Gilpatrick, Nathaniel G. Littlefield, John Hubbard, J. M. Wedgwood, Gideon Cook, W. H. Copeland and J. M. Thompson.

In 1808 a church was gathered at South Berwick village. Rev. William Chadbourne and Rev. William Boyd labored with them for a few years. This organization became extinct. The present Baptist church was re-organized November 13, 1823, at the house of John W. Seaver, where seventeen persons had assembled for that purpose. Rev. William Hooper of Madbury was chosen moderator, and Rev. Gideon Cook of Sanford, clerk of the meeting. In the spring of 1824, the church built a neat and comfortable chapel that would accomodate three hundred.

The present meeting-house was erected under the pastorate of Rev. Charles Miller, and dedicated December 6, 1826. The cost of the house was $6,500. The following pastors have served the church: Rev. Christopher S. Hale, 1824-'25; Rev. Duncan Dunbar, 1825-'26; Rev. Charles Miller, 1826-'30; Rev. Joseph Ballard, 1830-'37; Rev. Lewis Colby, 1838-'42; Rev. John Richardson, 1842-'59; Rev. Albert K. Potter, D. D., 1860-'65; Rev. Sullivan L. Holman, 1865-'67; Rev. George W. Gile, 1868-'73; Rev. Rudolph R. Riddell, 1874-'78; Rev. William A. Newcombe, 1879-'84; Rev. John H. Nichols, 1885-'89; Rev. Benjamin F. Simpson, 1889-'92; Rev. Irving B. Mower, 1893 to the present time.

FREE WILL BAPTIST

The Free Baptist Church in South Berwick, was organized May 18, 1834, by Elder Nathaniel Thurston. It consisted of thirteen members. This was the beginning of this organization, although previous to the above date, meetings had been held in this town by ministers from other places. The first settled pastor was Elder Nathaniel H. Trickey, who remained with the people for a term of two years, or thereabouts. His pastorate probably closed when the first deacon, James Tatterson, was chosen, on November 19, 1836, to fill that office. On December 25, 1836, it is recorded that Elder Daniel P. Cilley of Great Falls, preached to the people and baptised thirteen persons. The second pastor of the church was Elder Zachariah Jordan, who accepted the pastorate on November 26, 1837, and remained with them until August 13, 1839. He was succeeded by Rev. John Chaney, who remained with them two years, and was later recalled to the same position.

The following pastors have served the church: Rev. W. D. Johnson, Rev. John Chaney (recalled), Rev. Ezekiel True, Rev. Daniel Jackson, Rev. W. D. Johnson, (recalled). The above pastors served from 1840 to 1849. Edgar A Caverno, (supplied), Revs. F. Moulton, Willett Vary, D. P. Harriman, 1853-62; Joel Baker, N. C. Lothrop, W. I. Smith, A. C. Peaslee, J. J. Locke, A. Lovejoy, O. T. Moulton, James Rand, W. H. Ward, J. C. Osgood, W. W. Hayden, E. W. Cummings, C. V. Parsons, A. R. Paull, present pastor. The first church was dedicated April 20, 1836. Edgar Jonathan Woodman of Great Falls, preached the dedicatory sermon. Under the pastorate of Willett Vary the house was enlarged, the work being commenced in May, 1856, and closing in September of the same year. During this time the services were held in the village hall, Salmon Falls., New Hampshire.

METHODIST

In 1826 the Congregationalists left their old meeting house at Old Fields and removed to the village. The people of the old church attempted at first to supply themselves with Congregational preaching. Tired of this, they voted to hire a Methodist pastor. A committee of three, George Plaisted, Benjamin Gerish and Simeon Brock, chosen for that purpose, finally in 1828, secured Rev. Nathaniel Ladd, who was at that time of Great Falls, New Hampshire. Mr. Ladd immediately moved to the Great Works and began his labor among the people, with very marked success, remaining one year with the church. Rev. Paul Richmond, his successor, was the first pastor sent by the Maine Conference to the people. A powerful revival followed his zealous labors and over one hundred were added to the society. He was succeeded two years later, by the following appointments in order: Ebenezer C. Ewins, Joseph Gerry, Alvin Hatch, W. H. Pillsbury.

In 1830, when Rev. George D. Strout was appointed to this people, the church from various causes was very weak. His labors were rewarded by a sweeping revival, and over sixty were added to the church. The people at once began the erection of a church. It was soon completed, and dedicated in June, 1838. Rev. S. Stockman, who succeeded Mr. Strout, was the pastor at the time of the dedication. Rev. Paul. Richmond was returned to the people in 1838, and remained two years. In 1840 Rev Henry Butler was appointed. During his pastorate a parsonage was built and afterwards sold. Mr. Butler was succeeded by the following in their order: Revs. George Watkins, Freeman Yates, James Cushing, Parker Jaques William McDonald. In 1848 Rev Paul Richmond was sent to the people for a third term. During his pastorate, in March, 1849, the church was burned. This house stood on the present site of the residence of Mr. George C. Chagnon on the corner of Middle and Park streets, at the Landing. The church was rebuilt and dedicated within the two years following.

In 1867 the meeting house was enlarged and a vestry built, at a cost of $2700. The church was rededicated September 12, 1867. In 1886 a lot, the present site of the church, was secured, and the building moved to its present location. The house was again remodeled and rededicated. In 1897 the present parsonage on School street, was erected at a cost of $2200, on a lot presented to the society by Mrs. Nancy Plummer. The present pastor is T. C. Chapman. The membership is seventy-five; valuation of property, $11,500.

Pastors in order from 1850 to the present time. Revs. John Moore, Thomas Greenhalge, N. Hobart.

James Armstrong, Josiah Hooper, Uriah Rideout, Asa Green, Ezekiel Smith, P. E. Brown, Ezekiel Martin, Uriah Rideout, (a second time), Charles W. Morse, G. F. Cobb, O. W. Scott, W. B. Bartlett, H. B. Mitchell, Charles Munger, R. L. Green, John Collins, G. F. Cobb, W. W. Baldwin, E. W. Hutchinson, Israel Luce, G. F. Cobb, O. F. Pillsbury, Israel Luce, J. H. Roberts, and T. C. Chapman, the present pastor.

UNIVERSALIST

The Universalists of South Berwick first exerted their influence in the town in 1876. At that time Mr. Howard P. Marston and Mr. Porter Cummings, desirous of a society of their own religious views, started a movement to organize a church. These two men, with others who joined the movement met at a preliminary meeting in July 1876, and voted that an invitation be given to Rev. A. J. Patterson, D. D., to come and organize a church. With this object in view, the people met July 23, 1876, in the Newichawannock Hall and organized a church with fifteen members. For a short period the meetings were held in the hall with different ministers officiating. The present house was erected by its donators, P. E. Cummings and David Cummings. The estimate value of the church was $12,000.

The society met December 1, 1876 to make arrangements for the dedication which occurred shortly after. The first settled pastor was Walter Scott Vail who came and settled here in the fall of 1878. The following have served the church: Rev. Frank S. Rice, September 25, 1881 to June 1882; Rev. H. C. Munson, January 28, 1883 to July 1884; Rev. J. H. Farnsworth, November 25, 1884 to July 1, 1886; Rev. J. C. McEnerney, April 24, 1887 to April 29, 1888; Rev. A. B. Church, September 1888 to September 1890; Rev. H. O. Sommers, February 1891 to May 1891; Rev. Frank Bean, November 1891 to June 1892; Rev. E. A. Hoyt, of Dover, September 4, 1892.

Prominent Men

General Ichabod Goodwin was the grandson of Thomas, the first immigrant of the name in town, having settled as early as 1660. A portion of the old farm is still in the possession of a descendant of the first settler. Ichabod was born May 25, 1743, and during his life held many prominent positions. He served in the Provincial army, was a member of Congress in 1775 to 1777. After the Revolution he became the first major general of the militia for the County of York. In 1792 he was a representative from his own town, Sheriff of his county for twenty-seven years, and Major General in the war of 1812. Mr. Goodwin died May 25, 1829, aged 86 years.

Benjamin Greene was born May 5, 1764, and graduated at Harvard in 1784. In 1797 he took charge of Berwick Academy; admitted to the bar in 1801; Representative to the General Court from 1809 to 1811, 1813 to 1817; in 1819 member of Convention to frame State Constitution; Chief Justice of Court of Common Pleas, 1811 to 1822; Speaker of the House, 1824; Marshall of the United States by appointment of President Adams, 1824 to 1830, and died October 15, 1837, at Athens, Maine.

Dudley Hubbard was born in Ipswich, Mass., March 3, 1763; graduated from Harvard in 1786; began his study of law and was admitted to the bar in 1798; established himself at South Berwick and became one of the leading lawyers of the county.

Edward P. Hayman was born in Boston, February 22, 1771, and came to South Berwick when a young man. He studied law with Dudley Hubbard; was admitted to the bar November, 1796; elected Clerk of Massachusetts Senate in 1800; the same year appointed assistant clerk of the Supreme Court, and the next year one of the Circuit Clerks, which office he held until 1820. In 1823 he became cashier of the South Berwick bank. This position he held until his death December 25, 1831.

William A. Hayes was born at North Yarmouth, October 20, 1783, and graduated at Dartmouth with high honors in 1805. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1809, and established himself in South Berwick village, where he passed the remainder of his life. Mr. Hayes held many prominent positions. He was president of South Berwick bank more than twenty-five years; president of York County bar about the same time; Judge of Probate 1828 to 1847, and Representative to the Legislature in 1822.

Hon. William Burleigh, father of the late John H. Burleigh, was a member of the eighteenth and nineteenth Congresses, and member elect of the twentieth Congress at the time of his death, July 1827. Mr. Burleigh was a very successful lawyer and one who won the approval from his towns folk for getting a longed for appropriation from the Government, for dredging and blasting the river channel between the upper and lower landings, so that commerce was expected to take a new start in these busy waters. It is interesting to note that Mr. Burleigh had to, and did, work what we call a political trick, to get the above bill passed. The clause asking for the appropriation was worded so that it read "an appropriation for the 'Maine' branch of the Piscataqua." Many supported the bill, because they thought it was to aid Dover, because the main branch extended to that city. The letter (c) on the word main, was not noticed until the bill was passed.

Hon. John Burleigh was born in South Berwick, Maine, October 22, 1822, and became a sailor at seven dollars a month, when but sixteen years old. He rose to the rank of Captain and made several voyages around the world. In 1850, his wife accompanied him on a voyage around Cape Horn.

Mr. Burleigh, in 1853, left the sea-faring life and went into the foundry business with his brother. Two years later he helped to form, in his native town, a wool manufacturing incorporation, known as the Newichawannock Woolen Mills, of which he became leading owner and manager. Mr. Burleigh held many responsible positions. He was for several years president of the South Berwick Savings and National Banks; member of the Legislature 1862-'64-'66-'72; was chosen by his party in the State Legislature of 1864 delegate at large to the Baltimore Convention that nominated Lincoln and Johnson; in 1872 elected for the first District of Maine to the Forty-third Congress, at which time he served on the committee of Naval affairs. Other prominent names that I have but space to mention are: John N. Goodwin, Charles N. Cogswell, John P. Lord, Nathan Lord, D. D., William Gerrish, Capt. Horace Jewett, Dr. Usher Parsons, Judge Ghabbourne, Hiram H. Hobbs, Rev. Dr. Daniel R. Goodwin, Timothy Furgerson, Col. Jonathan Hamilton and Judge Hill.

South Berwick has been noted for the many illustrious men that have represented her town in all walks of life. It is a singular and well known fact that the the town has never in all its history been without a lawyer of much prominence living in the town,

Facts of Interest

The town of South Berwick has seen many incidents worthy of note. At the close of the war of 1812, the messenger bearing the news of peace, galloped through this town on his way to bear the good tidings through the Province of Maine. Again, a coach and six drove at full speed through the village to Mrs. Frost's tavern. In the coach sat President Monroe. These incidents seem over shadowed when we think of the visit of the beloved patriot, LaFayette, in 1824-25. This was perhaps the most interesting event in the early history of this town, for every one sought to rival his neighbor in doing honor to this noble guest. The General and his party stopped at Mrs. Sarah Frost's Inn, now the hotel on Main St.

One cannot journey through this interesting town but he is continually confronted by places of historic interest, but we can only mention briefly a few of the more noted spots. The old "Muster grounds," at Old Fields, the land now owned by the Cummings shoe firm, is a strong reminder of the early life of our ancestors. Here the people came at the "May Training." The "Brigade Muster," or "General Muster," was held in October.

The "Old South Burying Ground," an old historic and sacred reminder of the past, where lie many whose names have honored the town; among them Parson Jere Wise, the second ordained pastor of the Congregational church; Rev. John Tompson, the fourth pastor; and Mrs. Mehitable Goodwin, otherwise, "Hitty," who was captured and taken to Canada by the Indians. The burying ground at Great Hill, is another ancient landmark, and is the resting place of many of the noted heroic pioneers.

Other places of historic interest are: the vineyard on Vine street, where it is thought that Mason, the proprietor of the colony, sought, through his agent Gibbons, to grow a vineyard, where he hoped to rival the wine trade of France; the small mound called "Pudding Hill," where many have supposed the Indians buried treasures; "Cow Cove," where it is supposed the first cow was imported to this section; "Powder Hill," near the present Academy building, where a powder house was located; and various other spots of traditional fame.

Many early houses in this section are famous also for their historical interest and for having served as the homes of famous leaders. We can only name a few of them, as space does not allow detailed description. The Goodwin house at Old Fields; the old Jonathan Hamilton homestead at the lower landing; the Hayman house on Academy street, which, at the time of its erection by Edward Hoggins, was the nearest house to the Canadian line; the Hayes house on Academy street; the Timothy Ferguson house at the upper landing; the Hobbs house, built in 1795, where General LaFayette visited Mrs. Cushing in 1824; and the home of the Misses Jewett.

MAIN STREET
SOUTH BERWICK, ME.

Census, 1904

The population of the town of South Berwick has been arranged herewith in families where that arrangement has been possible. In these families, in addition to the resident living members, the names of the non-resident members are included. It should be borne in mind that this plan does not include the names of all former residents of this town as the names of the non-residents appear only when one or both the parents are still living in the town. At the end of the Census will be found the names of non-residents with their present addresses, when such addresses have been given to us. The non-residents are indicated by the (*).

Following the names of the population is the occupation. To designate the occupations we have used the more common abbreviations and contractions. Some of these follow: Farmer—far; carpenter—car; railroad service—R R ser; student, a member of an advanced institution of learning—stu; pupil, a member of a lower grade of schools—pl; housework—ho; laborer—lab; physician and surgeon—phy & sur; clergyman—clerg; merchant—mer; teacher—tr; blacksmith—blk; clerk—cl; book-keeper—bk kpr; lawyer—law; mechanic—mech; engineer—eng; insurance—ins; maker—mkr; worker—wkr; work—wk; shoe shop work—s s wk.

This Census was taken during the spring of 1904, expressly for this work by E. M. Campbell, Kent's Hill, Me.

THE FOSTER AND BESSE SYSTEM STORES

HOW IT WORKS

When any business enterprise claims to offer special advantages to the public, the public is entitled to know the facts upon which claims are based.

The secret of the success of the Foster and Besse System is a very simple one, being the principal of co-operation in buying and selling carried out on a broad and business like scale.

The Foster system in New England alone, represents 27 stores, and as a rule, are doing the biggest business in their line wherever located. With them are associated the Besse System of 16 stores. In many cases they are able to control the entire output of leading manufacturers and naturally own the goods at first-hand prices, including all cash discounts and the advantage of wholesale orders. In this way the quality of the goods is arbitrarily maintained and the reputation of each and every one of the Foster and Besse System Stores has been built upon the bedrock foundation of honest goods, warranted to prove as represented, the lowest retail cash prices and courteous treatment to every customer.

Wherever one of Foster and Besse System Stores is located, the fact is generally known and acknowledged, even by their competitors, that they can afford to sell better goods for less money than any house not enjoying the advantage of such a combination, the retail sales of which aggregate several million dollars annually.

The Foster and Besse System of Stores has been in existence for more than thirty-five years, and it is without question the most rational and easily understood evolution in the art of economical merchandising ever achieved, and its result is not only success for its promoters, but a matter of practical household economy in every family that can avail themselves of the opportunity to make their purchases at one of the stores.

We will take great pleasure in showing you our goods and prices that will convince you that it will be to your advantage, both in assortment and the prices we offer for you to trade with us.

Our stock is always complete, and anything new you will find here. We also carry a full line of Trunks, Suit Cases, Extension Bags, Hammocks, etc.
